

Applied MBA: Management by Application

by Emeritus Professor Gary Goh (Author)

Product Description

The purely academic or case-based pedagogical approaches in MBA studies are inadequate for any MBA or business graduate work experience, career progression, business management, or real-life skills.

Reading books, attending lectures, or doing case studies and every other "technique" taught by academic gurus don't work as everyone expects. The keys to MBA success have been taught for many years to millions of people in their search for help in achieving success. Most have tried them and found they didn't work for them in the real world. They still don't have what they want.

This book is a comprehensive tool kit success strategy for every individual and complements the academic MBA studies by providing practical business tips that are not taught in MBA business schools. This is Applied MBA: Management by Application - Practical MBA or Applied Business Practice.

Each practical and proven idea can be implemented immediately or adapted to suit anyone in the business world. Most MBA graduates see a problem. Others (Applied MBA graduates) see an opportunity to triumph.

About the Author

As President and Chief Executive Officer of the Australian Institute of Training and Education Pty Ltd, Australian LifeSkills College, Australian Vocational Training Institute Pty Ltd, Certified Management Consultants, Australian Quality Training Consultants, Excellent Accounts Pty Ltd in Australia, WorkSmart Training and Management in Singapore.

Emeritus Professor Gary Goh has spent the last twenty-eight years solving problems and significantly increasing the bottom lines of corporations in Australia and Asia Pacific regions. Gary's forte is the ability to identify the patterns that limit and restrict individual and business growth.
